Dear Mrs. Russalesi,

I would like to notify you that I am resigning from my position as a Web Application Developer for Synergy Software Design on September 5th.

Thank you for the opportunities that you have given me to work on large scale applications and pick up 3d basics. I have genuinely enjoyed working with this company and expanding my knowledge of frontend technologies. You are great people to work with. While I have many things I love about this company, there is a lot of teleworking. With the recent change to full time teleworking, I have decided that it was best for my career to take an offer with a company who is onsite full time.

In September, I will be taking on a Software Engineering position at a new company. In the meantime, I would be more than happy to assist with the transition by bringing a current developer or the hiring of a new developer to take over the applications I have been working on. Anything I can do to help let me know.

Sincerely,
Melanie MacDonald
